Hanuman, the mighty monkey warrior, saw his beloved Lord Rama with a sad heart. The wicked demon king, Ravana, had captured the beautiful Princess Sita and hidden her on his island kingdom of Lanka.

A vast, roaring ocean stood between them and Sita. While everyone else wondered what to do, Hanuman's heart filled with courage. He chanted Lord Rama's name, and a magical power flowed through him. He grew bigger, and bigger, until he was as tall as a mountain!

With a mighty roar, "Jai Shri Ram!" (Victory to Lord Rama!), Hanuman took a giant leap. He flew across the sky like a golden arrow, soaring over the massive waves below.

In Lanka, he bravely snuck past giant demons and finally found Sita in a beautiful garden called the Ashoka Vatika. He gave her Rama's ring, assuring her that help was on its way. Hanuman's single act of bravery brought hope to everyone.

Moral of the story: With courage in your heart and faith in doing the right thing, no ocean is too wide and no challenge is too big.
